Summary:

The Reserve Bank of India’s recent 25 basis-point repo-rate increase is projected to raise the monthly EMI on a ₹50 lakh home loan by roughly ₹852-₹867 over a 30-year tenure, with slightly lower impact on a 20-year schedule.

Detailed analysis:

Exam takers should remember the RBI’s repo-rate as a key transmission mechanism for monetary policy. A rise in repo rate directly lifts borrowing costs for housing loans, influencing consumption, asset-price inflation, and the balance-of-payments—core topics in economics papers.

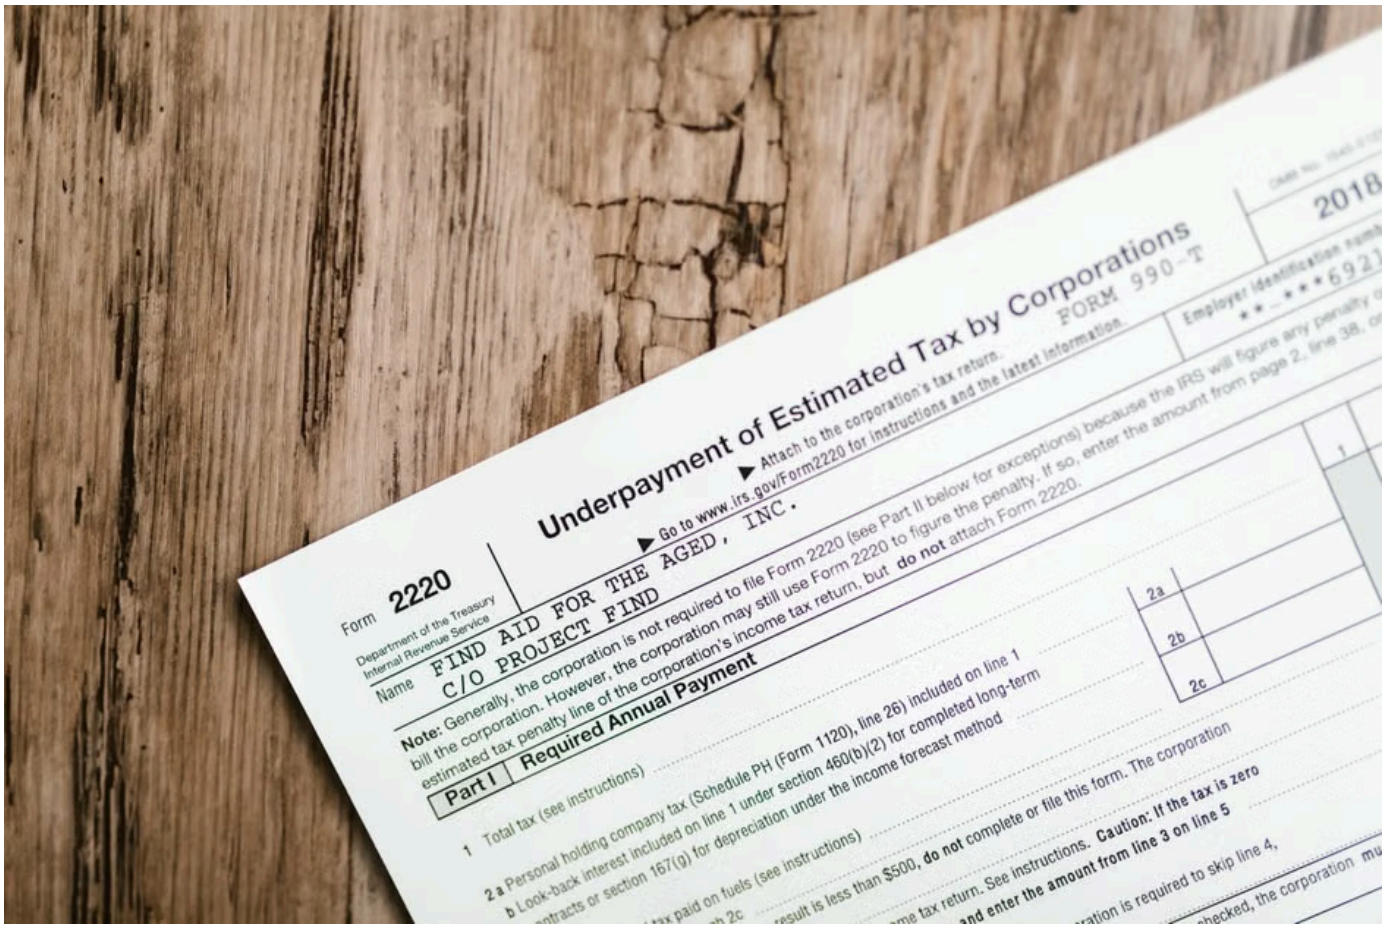
Image 2 (Pexels):



Summary:

Long-term capital gains (LTCG) tax on equity has resurfaced at a 12.5% rate with a ₹1.25 lakh exemption, prompting investors to reassess portfolio strategies as the government balances revenue needs with market attraction.

Detailed analysis:

Understanding LTCG tax is vital for finance-related exam questions on taxation and capital markets. The rate and exemption threshold affect investor behaviour, FDI inflows, and fiscal consolidation – all recurring themes in the Indian economy syllabus.

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

SBI Research has recommended that the government eliminate the LTCG tax on equities and extend the holding period, aiming to boost foreign portfolio investment and stabilise the rupee amid heavy outflows.

Detailed analysis:

Policy proposals like scrapping LTCG tax are examined in UPSC GS papers under fiscal policy and capital market reforms. Candidates should weigh the trade-offs between revenue loss and potential gains in FPI, market depth, and exchange-rate stability.

High Court Says PPF Interest Must Be Paid – 12-Year Irregularity No Longer a Loophole!

Image 1 (Real):

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

The Karnataka High Court ruled that postal authorities cannot deny interest on a PPF account that operated irregularly for 12 years, clarifying the liability of the government for such anomalies.

Detailed analysis:

PPF is a key component of the Indian savings system. The ruling underscores the principle of sovereign liability and protects small-saver interests, a point often asked in the "Public Finance" and "Social Security" sections of competitive exams.
