Summary:

The latest RBI rate cuts will particularly benefit borrowers who took home loans in 2020-2022 at rates of 6-6.5%, but saw the rates rise to 9-9.5% within a year.

Detailed analysis:

Lower repo rates translate into reduced EMIs for existing borrowers and create refinancing opportunities. Aspirants should connect this to the transmission mechanism of monetary policy and its impact on household consumption and credit growth.

Summary:

Standard Chartered has halved its bitcoin price forecasts for 2025 and 2026, citing weaker demand and a shift toward ETF-driven buying. Analyst Geoff Kendrick now sees slower long-term growth, delaying his $500,000 target to 2030 amid deteriorating crypto sentiment.

Detailed analysis:

The downgrade reflects macro-level risk-off sentiment and regulatory scrutiny on crypto assets. For exam preparation, note how asset-class forecasts interplay with monetary policy, capital-market reforms, and investor-confidence metrics.
