El Niño’s Sneaky Trick: Not Always a Bad Monsoon!

Image 1 (Real):

Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Seven Indian monsoons since 1950 have run into a moderate or strong El Niño. Of these, in five years, including 2026, monsoon rainfall levels were at least 10% lower than the long-term average. The IMD refers to this level as 'deficient’. The 2023 season was something of an exception with ‘below average’ rainfall. However, 1997 had ‘average’ rainfall

Detailed analysis:

Understanding the nuanced relationship between El Niño events and Indian monsoon performance is crucial for geography and environment papers in UPSC and state-level exams.

AI Giants Stumble as Democrats Take Congress—Power Bills Hit Wall Street!

Image 1 (Real):

Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

AI-related stocks came under pressure on Wednesday despite a broader Wall Street rally following the Democratic sweep of Congress. Data centre companies CoreWeave, Iren and Nebius fell, alongside Nvidia and Marvell, as investors weighed concerns over rising power costs, job losses, political scrutiny and debt-funded AI spending.

Detailed analysis:

The Democratic win raises the likelihood of tighter regulatory scrutiny on AI and higher energy tariffs, hurting capital-intensive AI firms. Aspirants should note how political cycles can swiftly alter sector sentiment and affect valuation models used in exams.

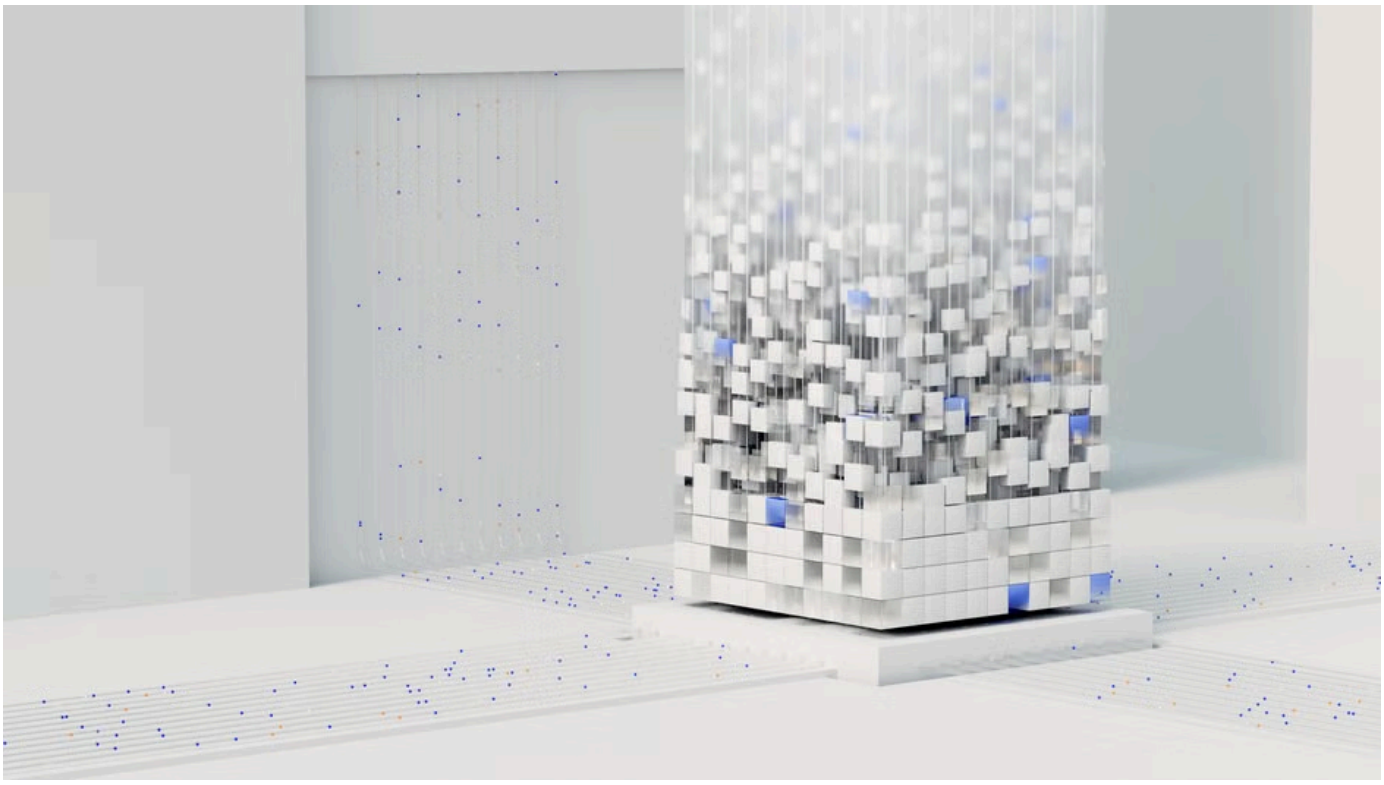
Image 2 (Pexels):



Summary:

AI data centre stocks declined while renewable energy and healthcare shares rallied after Democrats won control of Congress in the US midterm elections. Investors assessed the possibility of tighter AI oversight and continued clean energy support. Defence contractors and prison operators fell amid concerns over changing government spending and immigration policies.

Detailed analysis:

Exam takers should link the political shift to sector rotation: AI-heavy data-centers face policy risk, while renewables benefit from pro-climate agendas. This illustrates how fiscal and regulatory expectations feed into market forecasts.

Oil Crashes Below $100 on Iran Peace Hopes After US Democrats Triumph!

Image 1 (Real):

Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Crude oil prices experienced a significant decline, with Brent prices falling below $100 per barrel. The decline was influenced by hopes for a peace deal in the Iran war after Democratic victories. Discussions about a possible agreement have prompted Qatar to increase its mediation efforts between Washington and Tehran. Despite the optimism, Iranian officials suggest that an agreement is still far from being reached.

Detailed analysis:

A potential Iran peace deal reduces geopolitical risk premiums, pushing oil down. Candidates should understand how diplomatic outcomes feed into commodity pricing models and balance-of-payments considerations.

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Democrats' midterm victory could strengthen the Federal Reserve's independence by limiting President Donald Trump's ability to appoint allies to its board. A Democrat controlled Senate could also intensify scrutiny of Fed Chair Kevin Warsh, with Elizabeth Warren likely to lead the Senate Banking Committee and challenge the administration's banking reforms.

Detailed analysis:

Understanding the Senate's role in confirming Fed board members helps explain potential shifts in monetary policy autonomy—key for questions on central banking governance in UPSC and banking exams.
