Who Cares for the Caregivers? ASHA Workers' Silent Mental-Health Crisis!

Image 1 (Real):

 Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

They are being trained to spot depression and prevent suicides in rural regions, but who cares for the ASHA worker's well-being?

Detailed analysis:

The article highlights a critical gap in India's rural health system: while ASHA (Accredited Social Health Activist) workers are frontline agents for mental-health detection, their own psychological welfare is overlooked. For UPSC and state civil services, this underscores the need for policies on health-worker safety, counselling services, and incentives. It also illustrates the broader theme of occupational health in the public sector.

Hidden Dangers Below: Pelvic Inflammatory Disease Threatens Women's Fertility!

Image 1 (Real):

 Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Unsafe sexual practices and the use of vaginal cleaners can contribute to PID, an upper reproductive system infection that affects the uterus, fallopian tubes and ovaries. Using condoms and minimising products can go a long way toward protecting women's reproductive health

Detailed analysis:

PID is a major cause of infertility, ectopic pregnancy and chronic pelvic pain. The piece stresses primary prevention (condom use, avoidance of intravaginal chemicals) and early diagnosis—key points for the preventive and reproductive health sections of medical, nursing and public-administration exams. It also reflects on gender-sensitive health education policies.

Image 1 (Real):

 Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Central retinal vein occlusion, or CRVO, occurs when the main vein draining the retina becomes blocked, usually at or near the optic nerve head, where space is tight. This blockage leads to congestion, retinal haemorrhages, and swelling at the macula, the small central area responsible for sharp reading vision

Detailed analysis:

CRVO is a sight-threatening ophthalmic emergency often linked to systemic conditions such as hypertension, diabetes and hyperlipidaemia. For medical exams, remember the classification (ischemic vs non-ischemic), clinical presentation (sudden painless vision loss), and management (anti-VEGF therapy, laser). It also illustrates the need for integrated chronic-disease control to prevent ocular complications.

Beat Baby Heart Trouble Before It Starts: Prenatal Screening Saves Lives!

Image 1 (Real):

 Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Delays in diagnosis of congenital heart disease are usually due to a lack of screening or clinical awareness. Early detection is crucial to ensuring treatable conditions do not become life-threatening hurdles

Detailed analysis:

The article stresses the importance of antenatal screening (ultrasound, fetal echocardiography) and capacity building among obstetricians. For competitive exams, focus on the epidemiology of congenital heart disease, screening timelines (18-22 weeks), and the role of national programmes like the Rashtriya Bal Swasthya Karyakram in early detection and referral.

Beedi Tax Cut: Cheap Smoke, Heavy Health Toll!

Image 1 (Real):

 Original Image

Image 2 (Pexels):

Summary:

Beedis are taxed much lower than cigarettes but they pose serious health risks, in many cases exceeding those of cigarettes

Detailed analysis:

The piece provides data-driven insight into tobacco fiscal policy. While lower beedi taxes may boost short-term revenue and support informal workers, they aggravate respiratory and oral cancers, burdening the health system. For policy-oriented exams, note the WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control, tax elasticity, and the public-health trade-off between revenue and disease burden.
